LEGALIZED MONOPOLY BRANDEIS DESCRIBES THE NEW TOBACCO PLAN

Washington, Nov. 17.—"Legalized monopoly without control," was the way Louis D. Brandeis today described the result of the tobacco trust suit under the reorganization plan from which Attorney General Wickham has announced he will not appeal.

"It is a singularly unfortunate thing for the public that the attorney general declines to act in this matter, as he is the only man who can protect the public against a failure of justice," said Brandeis.

"There is a very signal failure of justice here. The plan offered by the tobacco trust is not a real disintegration nor a compliance with the orders of the supreme court either in spirit or letter.

"Practically it amounts merely to this: 'The bulk of the business of the tobacco trust is divided among three large corporations. These three corporations, which are to carry forward the business of the trust, are to be owned by the same persons in the same proportion. The persons who will control these corporations are those who have heretofore been guilty of all the illegal practices condemned by the supreme court and are in fact now defendants in the so-called disintegration suit.

"This alleged disintegration of the trust leaves the independents in a worse position than they were before the court acted, for the plan accepted is a plan of legalized monopoly, without control.

"The action of the stock market is the best commentary on the tobacco trust decision. The common stock of the tobacco company sold yesterday after the decree at $40 a share, a price higher than it has ever attained except in the boom period preceding the panic of 1907. The aggregate market value of the American tobacco company's securities today including preferred stock and bonds, is probably greater than at any time in the history of the trust. This can mean only one thing—that in the opinion of Wall street, the illegal control acquired by the tobacco company through its most restless methods has been legalized."

OTHER MEMBERS OF TAR PARTY ON TRIAL IN KANSAS TODAY

Lincoln Center, Kas., Nov. 17.—Warning by Judge Grover that newspaper men who sent colored stories o developments would be excluded and the court's order debarring all women and children from attendance, made it apparent when the trial of three of the alleged members of the mob who tarred and feathered Miss Mary Chamberlain, that sensational testimony was expected.

There were twelve tentative jurors in the box this morning when Sheriff Clark, A. N. Sims and John Schmidt faced charges of complicity in the "tar party." The state is attempting to convict the men on purely circumstantial evidence, as no words were spoken during the attack on the school teacher and the assistants all wore masks. It was believed today that the jury will be completed late today and that Miss Chamberlain herself would take the stand tomorrow afternoon. The school teacher will testify that three men did the work of tarring her, the remainder of the mob merely watching the proceedings. One of the three men held her prostrate and the other two wielded the tar brush.

No sentence will be inflicted on E. G. Clark, Watson Seranton and Jay Fitzwater, who pleaded guilty to complicity in the assault yesterday, until the jury reports in the cases now on trial. The confessed assailants face a fine of $500 and one year in jail—the maximum penalty.

DON'T CONFUSE MAN AND ARTIST

Although Combined in One Personality They Are Quite Distinct.

Such at Least is Reasoning of Men With Two Apparent Views.

Cleveland, Nov. 17.—"That which concerns Adolph Thuelecke, the man, should not be connected with Adolph Singuf, the artist. It does not matter that both are the same man."

This was the explanation given today by the woman known to Clevelanders as Mrs. Adolph Singuf, wife of the director of several German choruses for a strange "trististic comradeship" story unfolded through a suit in the courts.

Adolph Thuelecke was director of the German chorus at the Metropolitan opera house in New York, and lived with his wife and little daughter in Jersey. Suit has been brought against Singuf, however, by Clara Thuelecke, a trained nurse, who says she is the Jersey wife and is seeking to recover $1,400 which she has spent in the support and education of her nine-year-old daughter. She says Singuf, or Thuelecke, left her in 1909, coming to Cleveland with the woman now known as his wife.

Today Singuf admitted his real name was Thuelecke and that he had adopted Singuf for professional purposes. As to the Mrs. Singuf here, he said they were merely "artistic comrades." Singuf said he decided it would be better for his comrade to be known as Mrs. Singuf, but that he had contributed nothing to her support as she also was a musician. He denied that he had deserted Mrs. Thuelecke in New York, charging that she had left him, while Mrs. Singuf was strong in her assertions that she had found Singuf merely an agreeable artistic companion, and that the affairs of the artist and man should not be confused.

GET SPECIMRNS IN THE ROCKIES

Naturalists of Smithsonian Return From Canadian Mountains.

Collection Covers Practically all Birds and Animals in Region.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—The Smithsonian party which accompanied Dr. A. S. Wheeler, president of the Alpine club of Canada, on his topographic survey of the British Columbia-Alberta boundary line and the Mount Robson region, has just returned to Washington with nine hundred specimens from the Canadian wilds.

The new collection is quite complete, and covers practically all the birds and animals inhabiting this previously unworked territory.

The party, consisting of four members, included the assistant curator of mammals and Mr. J. H. Riley, of the division of birds of the National Museum.

Assembling at Edmonton, Alberta, early in July, the party proceeded on the new Grand Trunk Pacific to the end of the steel, where they found it necessary to take pack horses to penetrate the Mount Robson region. The land to be surveyed included the territory lying about this mountain in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, comprising the most rugged and broken country imaginable.

Amid this wonderful scenery Mount Robson rises in titanic outline the highest peak in the Rockies, probably between 14,500 and 15,000 feet, and surrounding it for a distance of fifty miles in all directions lies the field of survey.

In this wild and unclaimed country the party of naturalists remained for nearly four months, protected by special permits from the Canadian government. The natural history work was divided up, Mr. Hollister and Mr. Riley collecting the birds and small animals, while the other two collectors hunted big game.

The collections include some 300 specimens of birds and animals, the latter ranging in size from mole-like creatures called "H. H. Rows" to full grown caribous and bears. One enormous grizzly bear was obtained by a fortunate shot.

Much fine material for exhibition groups was secured, including a series of caribous, mountain goats, mountain sheep, beavers, and many varieties of small animals.

Reptiles birds and mammals, a large number of plants and insects were collected. All the specimens have been turned over to the National Museum, where they will be put on exhibition.

STATE TO MAKE

his mind, District Attorney Frederick will not make any opening statement regarding the case as he does not desire to give the defense an inkling of his intentions.

The first day will be devoted to proving the death of Charles Huggerty, for whose killing James E. McNamara is on trial. Then will come evidence regarding the actual cause of the destruction of the Times and, in this connection, the state hopes to overwhelm the defense's case by sheer weight of evidence.

It will try to prove that explosive took place in both the stereotyping and composing rooms, where great batteries of linotype and stereotyping machines operated by gas, and using enormous quantities, were constantly working. It will call two witnesses, in an endeavor to show that, because of these machines constantly operating all night previous to the explosion the defense's theory that gas shattered the building is absolutely untenable.

The state asserts that numerous witnesses will absolutely swear that it would have been a physical impossibility for enough gas to have been stored in the Times building near ink alley, where the explosion took place, to explode from any cause and that therefore, the dynamite theory is the only logical one.

When court opened today the jury box was filled, nine of the occupants being subject to peremptory challenge. Both sides believed there were not fewer than four and probably five actual jurors in the box.

Both sides refused to take anyone into their confidence but the men expected by experienced court attachos to survive the use of peremptory challenges were: Clark McLain, cashier President National bank; C. A. Heath, farmer of Compton; William J. Anderson, carpenter, of Los Angeles and J. E. Seaton, farmer and real estate dealer, of Alhambra.

In addition to these four, Alexander Grubling, retired harness maker of Whittier, and Willet Brunner, locomotive engineer, were considered by many court attachos as having a good chance of remaining although attorneys for the defense and other court officials thought the state would challenge them.

The defense has determined to challenge G. H. Elliott, seventy-five years old, retired gardener of Santa Monica, who believes in the dynamite theory, and Jacob Lanning, fruit grower, who was reported to have declared that he had no doubt of McNamara's guilt but who insisted on the stand that he had no opinion in the case. In addition, the defense was still considering the case of Major Brewster C. Kenyon, Spanish war veteran, and oil operator, who was expected to eliminate him because his associates at Long Beach adopted resolutions commending Detective Burns' arrests in this case.
